LONDON PAPERS PRAISE TEDDY IN MOURNING DEATH

LONDON, Jan. 7.—In discussing the death of Theodore Roosevelt, the Times this morning says:
"In politics, in all else, he was a vigorous, fighting man and dealt hard blows. His opponents smarted under them, but the most determined enemies in that field were just as proud of him as a great citizen as were the rest of the American people."
"He can not be ranked with the lofty creative geniuses of politics, but his name will go down among those of American presidents with something of a character that attaches to the name of Lincoln, as one who was a great abiding force in morals as well as politics, and who served his country with unswerving earnestness and zeal."
The Post says:
"It is not every voice that carries across the Atlantic, but Roosevelt's did. It was listened to here almost as attentively as in America, and its familiar, downright accents will be missed. The world can ill spare its big men now."

The Chronicle says:
"History places some big things in his record, but bigger than any, perhaps, was the challenging impact of his personality on the world in which he lived."
"While Roosevelt there disappears from the world a great American and a great friend of Britain," says the Daily Mail. "He was ever a fighter, continuously challenging criticism, as must a man whose primal quality is pure energy rather than pure reason. We think of him as a man who also made a great place in the world by dint of his great and very American qualities."
The Daily Telegraph says:
"In Roosevelt the world loses one of its elemental figures, one of those who not more than twice or thrice in a generation strike the imagination of mankind as personifying to a supreme degree some human force at work on history."
The Daily Graphic says:
"Theodore Roosevelt was nearly as complete a man as can be imagined."

HOTELS BOST FARM CAMPAIGN LIBERALLY

The farm development bureau campaign was substantially boosted by the subscription of the Memphis Hotel company Tuesday. Three hundred dollars a year for three years from each of the three hotels, Chicago, Gayoso and Peabody, was subscribed by the company, with the statement that the large voluntary contribution was being made because "there is no work, undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce that has a greater value to the future prosperity of Memphis than the farm bureau work."

The subscription, $900 a year for the three hotels, will aggregate $2,700 in three years. The subscription was made through A. L. Parker, manager of the hotel company, who addressed a letter of explanation to Dr. J. B. Butler, the chairman of the financial campaign committee. "We have thousands of acres of land of tremendous value for livestock, small grain crops and other necessary food products that enter directly into manufacturing that must be developed," read Mr. Parker's letter. "It is essential that proper markets be created for such livestock and agricultural products and we believe that the program outlined by the bureau director, Dr. E. R. Lloyd, will develop this territory to such an extent that our subscription to this fund is in the nature of an insurance anything that might, through unforeseen reasons, affect the value of our great staple product."
The campaign is for $90,000 to finance the work of the farm bureau for three years. Over two-thirds has been raised and it is hoped by Dr. Butler and the solicitors to be able to report the full amount by Saturday.

RETURNING HEROES WILL WANT POSITIONS

Officers of the United States employment service in Tennessee, acting upon instructions from Dr. Joseph T. Ware, federal director, will begin this week to prepare for the return of the jobless men who will come back soon to Tennessee with the Thirtieth division.
Thousands of the Tennessee fighters will step into civilian jobs that have been held open for them through the long months of war. Other thousands are not so fortunate, and will be compelled upon their return to seek new employment.
Community labor boards throughout the state will be called upon by Dr. Ware to mobilize the employers for the important task of providing employment for every jobless man who returns with the Tennessee troops.
The Thirtieth division will reach America about Feb. 1. In the ordinary course of events the soldiers will be discharged from the service within two weeks thereafter. The intervening small lull of it as Indian money in trading with the civilians of the various German villages.

E. W. G. MEERS HEADS CONTRACTORS' ASSN.

E. W. G. Meers, of the firm of Meers & Dayton, will head the General Contractors' association during the ensuing year. He was elected president at the annual meeting of the association today at 1:30 o'clock. D. M. Crawford, of D. M. Crawford & Co., retires from the office of president.

Other officers elected are as follows: Fred D. Young, of F. B. Young & Son, vice-president; J. C. Barker, of the J. C. Barker Co., treasurer. The secretary, A. G. Fields, was re-elected.
Besides the president, the retiring officers of the association are G. C. Kaucher, of Kaucher, Hodges & Co., vice-president; E. J. Thomas, of D. D. Thomas & Son, treasurer.
"Conditions are mighty favorable for a good building program this year," the retiring president of the association stated during the course of his annual report. Building, he said, will consist chiefly of residences and of business houses which necessity demands. He anticipates but little investment construction because of the prevailing high prices.
"But limitations on construction have at last been removed," Mr. Crawford continued, "after having been on for virtually four years, and there is much building that must be done."
The plentifulness of labor was mentioned by Mr. Crawford as the most favorable angle of the building situation.
"Men are coming back from the camps and from the trenches," he said. "There will be more labor, therefore the competition will be harder, labor will become more efficient and will produce more. Because of this I would advise persons expecting to build to do so now or else wait two or three years until prices drop."
The former president of the contractors expects the present prices to endure for several years longer. "There is bound to be a readjustment," he said, "because prices are too high, but it may be two or three years off. Prices for a time, though, will remain fairly steady."

The low stocks of building materials and the great demand, which will increase with the coming of the building season in the spring, were credited by Mr. Crawford with responsibility for the continuance of elevated prices.
One reduction in cost was mentioned by the speaker. The American Radiator company, he said, had cut the cost of boilers and radiators 25 per cent. "Much construction has been deferred during the past year on account of the high prices on heating plants," he added.
